

About us

The Faculty of Philology, which was formed at the same time as the Sharof Rashidov Samarkand State University and became its integral part, is today a worthy successor to 600 years of scientific and spiritual traditions. In harmony with the directions of linguistics and literary studies, this institution trains a new generation of specialists with modern thinking and intellectual potential.

Our goal

The goal is to train qualified personnel with deep theoretical knowledge in the field of language and literature, independent thinkers, and critical analysis skills who can effectively use modern pedagogical and information and communication technologies and who are capable of conducting scientific research.

Internship

Students conduct their educational and professional practice in their specialty (dialectological, pedagogical, scientific centers, and research institutes). Students who have mastered the subjects well can study in developed countries such as Turkey, Japan, and Germany.

In addition, students studying or graduating from various fields of philology can further deepen their knowledge in foreign higher education institutions and become qualified specialists in linguistics and literary studies.
